THE NEXT GREAT EVENT

The elections over. The next great event of the year in Cayley will be our 24th of May celebration, which falls, this year on a Saturday—3rd Saturday. This is an event in which both Liberal and Conservatives can heartily join hands and vying with each other in making the event a huge success. If only half of the energy, forthrightness and interest is exhibited in this day between now and the above dates by our farmers and citizens as has been taken in elections just past, our celebration will be a record breaker for Alberta—and there is not the slightest reason why it shouldn't be. This is a local event that will do more to advertise Cayley and district than anything else. The day last year was the best along this line, and was the best of far and near. Let the 1913 celebration surpass its predecessors in every way. It will be to whet our shoulders to the wheel and boost it along.

Wider Markets for Canada

The most sweeping scheme of tariff reduction ever submitted to the United States Congress was brought before it last week, when the new tariff bill was introduced in the House. The most striking part of the bill is the extension of the free list. The bill provides that there shall be no duties levied upon meats, flour, boots, milk and cream, potatoes, swine, corn, agricultural implements, sewing machines, steel rails, fence wire, fish, and a number of other articles. This would at once throw open the markets of the United States to world-wide competition in these special markets, and it should mean no inconsiderable reduction in the cost of living. At the same time certain articles of luxury, such as uncut diamonds and furs, are taken off the free list and taxed ten per cent. In addition to this large addition to the free list, there is wholesale reduction of duties upon practically every class of goods. In the case of sugar the duty is reduced at once to about one cent a pound and the bill provides that in 1916 sugar will be placed upon the free list. It is estimated that if the bill becomes law it will mean a loss to the revenue of $80,000,000. To meet this loss it is proposed to levy an income tax upon incomes over $4,000 per annum. A tax of one per cent. will be levied upon incomes from $4,000 to $10,000, the tax increasing gradually until it is fixed at a per cent on all incomes above $100,000. The general purpose of the bill is plainly manifest to reduce the cost of living, as it affects the poor, to insure competition by lowering the tariff wall, and to raise the needed revenue by a tax upon the well-to-do. Considering the composition of the House of Congress, and the character of the President, it would seem probable that the bill will pass both Houses without radical amendment, but there will probably be very vigorous opposition before it is allowed to become law. But if the bill becomes law and the cost of living is lowered in the Republic, how long will it be before Canada will follow the lead of her great neighbor? We venture to say that it will not be long.—The Christian Guardian.

Supplying the Podgros.

Mr. Stevens, Live Stock Commissioner of Alberta, very wisely, we think, is advising farmers who are purchasing pedigreed live stock to withhold part (say 25 per cent.) of the purchase price until the papers of registration have been supplied.

In buying a pure-bred animal, there are two quite distinct things being bought. One of these is the animal itself, the other is the implied advantage of registering the progeny of that animal and selling the progeny at the advanced prices which this class of stock commands.

To supply the animal without the papers is to fulfil only part of the agreement, and any court of justice would declare the terms of sale of a pure bred as not being satisfied until the papers were supplied.

Mr. Stephens asserts that he has many complaints, especially in connection with pig sales, that the money has been paid but the pedigrees are unobtainable, or at least are secured only after much correspondence.

We endorse Mr. Stevens' view that part of the purchase price should be withheld until the papers are supplied.

In handing down his decision in the case of Thomas vs. Ward, which was recently heard before him, his honor, Mr. Justice Stuart sets forth some very interesting points on which is originally termed "The Rules of the Road."

The action was one in which which the plaintiff, Thomas, sought to recover $1000 damages from the defendant, Ward, both of whom were operating automobile, when the automobile of the plaintiff was practically demolished in a collision with the automobile of the defendant, while the two were going in opposite directions on Eighth street west, Calgary. His honor, in giving judgment, said:

As to the rule of the road, I do not know that there is any law about it particularly, except in the recent statute of 1911-12, which says that when people meet they must turn to the right. Now that does not mean that you should always be on the right hand side of the road. That is not what the law says. It says that when two people meet they shall turn to the right. I observe in one of the authorities which quoted to me that in some of the American states the words are used: "Shall seasonably turn to right," that is, he shall turn to the right in seasonable time. Now these words are not used in our statute but I think that is what our statutes mean. It must mean that a person must, in a reasonable and seasonable time before actual meeting, turn to the right. In my opinion the defendant did not do that. He did not turn in a reasonable time to the right.

DRUGGED AND ROBBED IN PARIS

Meets Stranger Who Ventures to Show Him Signs of the City of Paris, France. — A gentleman was told to the Paris police by a young Canadian, James Huntly, of identity of Winnipeg.

Mr. Huntly is a real estate agent by profession. After a short stay in London he arrived, he said, in the Gare St. Lazare, in Paris, on his way to St. Louis. He intended to remain one day here. He says that he put his luggage in the cloakroom at the station, got a check for it and went for a stroll.

Opposite Cook's, on the Place de l'Opera, he was accosted by a guide, who offered to show him the city. He agreed, and got into a taxicab with the man. After showing him several points of interest, the guide proposed to show him the Apollo quarter, and drove with him to a house in a slum. He does not know where it was.

The guide took him into a room on the first floor furnished with a few chairs, a table and a cupboard—nothing else. The $200 guide opened the cupboard and offered Mr. Huntly a drink which he accepted.

As soon as he had emptied his glass the guide asked him nothing of what happened to him till he was alone in the afternoon on a chair in the Madeleine Church. His pockets were all empty. The guide was gone. He saw, twenty minutes later, in it, several papers and the check for his trunk. The trunk had been taken away from the cloakroom, presumably by the guide.

The charity organization of the Hotel de Ville, Mr. Huntly returned to London and he will be repatriated.

Keeping Pace With It
I say, can you tell me how far it is to the nearest town?

The rustic looked at the hot and feverish traveller, scratched his head thoughtfully, and then replied:

Oh, about three miles, I should think.

And the traveller continued his journey with renewed energy.

An hour or so later he met another rustic, whom he repeated his question, hoping to hear how far it was near his journey's end. But instead, ah, Mr. Fitzbrandon, said a really sweet and charming lady at one of the stalls, and what are you going to buy? Dear old auntie and I are running to see and fill my new shoes.

Yes, said she, and fill my new shoes. But what do you sell cakes at your stall?

Oh, certainly! I came the reply. One guinea each.

Right! replied the auclair. Then I'll take a couple—and good measure please.

Amel, remarked the fair and dainty dame, forward, please. Two kisses for this gentleman!

For a moment the man of means and money was nonplussed, but only for a moment. Then he turned to the rustic.

James, he said coolly, just take this purchase, please.

SPARKLING WATER, cool and sweet, refreshes the farmer who builds a

Concrete Well or Tank

THE FARMER, above all others, appreciates good water. He drinks more water than the city man. The city-dweller is dependent upon the public water-supply for the purity of his water, while the farmer can have his own private source of water, and thus be sure that it is pure and healthful.

MAN hasn't found a better drink than cool water, properly collected and stored. But in order to keep water fresh and pure, a tank or well casing that will keep out every possible impurity must be used.

CONCRETE IS THE IDEAL MATERIAL FOR TANKS AND WELL-CASINGS.

It is absolutely water-tight, protecting your water from seepage of all kind. It cannot rot or corrode. It is a cool, clean-lined lining. Time and water, instead of causing it to decay, actually make it stronger.

BELGIANS SCARED BY GERMANY

What is Considered Grave Situation
Brussels, Germany.—The Belgian chamber of deputies has discussed at a secret sitting vital questions of national defence.

When it was proposed that a secret sitting should be held, several members announced that they would not attend.

Baron de Broqueville, the premier and war minister, stated that the minister for foreign affairs and himself are on a volcano.

If you do not promise to observe our communications secret, we shall be compelled to withhold them.

Guarantees that secret would be observed were declined and the secret sitting was held.

Fortifications were taken and parliamentary journalists were forbidden access even to rooms adjacent to the chamber.

It is clear that the premier has been clearly expressed by the German military measures at Elzenborn and other places on the Belgian frontier.

At Elzenborn there is the vast maneuver camp where the Colibert army corps from Aix-Chapelle a military rally of 40,000 men is being held.

It is also clear that the German branch line runs west to Malmédy, close to the Belgian frontier.

A new line has been laid by the Belgian frontier town of Stavelot and the railway to Brussels and Liege.

At the public sitting of the chamber Baron Broqueville said that the debate might be decisive regarding the future of Berlin.

Certain foreign powers, he stated, would not increase in the Belgian army.

At the public sitting of the chamber, he stated that the German army is virtually certain that an increase will be made.

According to the Deutsche Heine, the German army is the international situation was greatly disturbed.

A large military force were massed to the south and east of Belgium, and that it threatened the country to be in the hands of the enemy.

HOW TO FERTILIZE THE FARM PAY

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

There are more reasons than one for making proper use of the fertilizer part of the farm program. With 100 to 500 chickens on a place many bush of copious can be made, which will be worth hundreds of dollars in fertilizing the garden and field crops.

It is necessary to keep a poultry house and yard liberally supplied with road dust or some other light soil. The fresh supply of this earth twice a week after.

It serves as an absorbent for the droppings, produces a rich cover very fast and destroys lice.

It is a dust heap is one of the first essentials around a poultry plant this clean, the earth comes into play there.

It is a strong point in its favor. Much of the manure which farmers use, especially that hauled from towns, is full of the seeds of noxious weeds.

Plan a system of crop rotation that will build up your soil and produce larger crops and allow a wider margin for profit.

WHEN DRAINAGE PAID.

Brought 400 bushels of corn and added $1000 to the farm's value.

Four hundred and fifty bushels of corn from eight acres that were almost worthless ten years ago is the yield.

Mr. Van Housen, of Lincoln, Neb., received this year. Drainage did it. Here is the story:

Mr. Van Housen wrote two years ago to H. H. Walker, state drainage and irrigation engineer.

Mr. Walker advised him to drain the land and he did. The land was planted to corn and yielded 400 bushels.

It cannot be procured the fertilizer will need to be closely covered to preserve the nitrogen.

The use of a good fertilizer may be depended on to add 20 to 30 per cent to the productivity of a plot of ground, and hence so line of activity on the farm pays better than the preparation of compost.

While on this subject I wish to urge the importance of having well rotted manure if the plowing is to be done in the spring. It is useless to plow into the ground a lot of half rotted straw just before seeding time.

Local News

Jack Fisher has returned home. Mr. Bradley was a Calgary visitor on Sunday last.

Mrs. D. Alwood has returned home from her trip to Manchester, Tenn.

Mr. A. E. Walker of Calgary spent a few days in the berg last week.

The house of commons, on Wednesday night, adopted the closure by vote of 108 to 73.

Cowley is blowing about having fall wheat three inches high. That's nothing. We have fall wheat in the bin.

W. Frank, the last of the Elvies brothers, left his home in Ontario to join his four brothers in Sunny Southern Alberta.

J. S. Elvies has purchased the Ferris property, opposite the Methodist parsonage, and has taken up his residence there.

We are sorry to report that the health of Mr. Scobie is not as satisfactory as his many friends would wish, but we hope soon to hear of his recovery.

The Rev. R. D'agles, B.A., of High River, took the service at the Methodist church on Sunday evening. A good crowd attended and about $35 were subscribed towards the missionary fund.

Reports made to Conservative headquarters since Thursday prove to be correct, a large number of protests against the election of some twenty successful Liberal candidates will be filed shortly.

The local members of the I. O. O. F. attended the anniversary service of the order held at High River last Sunday. Rev. Mr. McKenzie preached a very eloquent sermon, which was much appreciated by the brethren.

The "hunger strike" bill, designed by the government to do away with forcible feeding of suffragettes serving terms in prison, which has been called the "cat and mouse" bill by the militant suffragettes, passed its third reading in the house of commons by a vote 294 to 56.

During the past week or two, three large contractors have left Carmangay to work on the grade of the new railroad from Rellaw to Blackie. Twenty-seven miles will be graded this summer. The contractors who left Carmangay are Martin Egarty, Crandall Bros., and E. Tolton.

The ladies aid were dispensing ice cream and cake again on Saturday last, but owing to the high winds the tent was not used. By the kindness of the town dads the fire hall was used instead. The ladies will sell ice cream on Saturdays up to May 24th, that date being the last of the season.

The Lloydminster Times did not support the successful Conservative candidate in Alexandra, but it is constrained to say this: "If half the rumors one hears on the streets, however, can be believed, Mr. Lyster would have had a splendid chance of winning out had he not been surrounded by far too many professional politicians. The general idea is that the country is getting a little sick of this phase of politics."

Some 400 head of fat steers were brought in Cayley on Monday to be weighed. These steers have been distributed among the farmers of this neighborhood by Pat Burns for fattening purposes during the past winter, the farmers being paid per lb. for increase of weight during their fattening process. The whole lot were a fine looking bunch, and it is pretty certain that most of the farmers will do well with their spotted grain.

The warehouse of the Alberta Grain Co.'s elevator at Carmangay succumbed on Monday night to the pressure of the grain it contained. The west side of it gave way, with the result that 30,000 bushels of wheat drenched the railway siding in proximity. Since the accident all the available wagons and men to be procured have been utilized in the recovery of the grain, which has been stored away in the elevator.

One of the greatest events of the season—in the children's realm—was the great and glorious birthday party given in honor of Master Clifford Elvies, when about twenty of his young friends assembled at the home of Clifford's parents, where they had the time of their lives. All kinds of games were indulged in by the little folks, besides partaking of a plentiful supply of refreshments and candies that delighted the juvenile taste and appetite. And then as a brilliant climax to a delightful afternoon's enjoyment, the whole party's march out, in military step, with banners flying, to the rhythm of the bagpipes, headed by Sandy, across the prairie and back. This never-to-be-forgotten party came to an end at last, and all the happy little kiddies returned home, with visions of cakes, candies and Sandy and his bagpipes, as each little pair of tired legs and body laid down to rest at night. Oh, you childhood days—the best and brightest and happiest of our lives!

Ask to Have Appeal Costs Secured

Mrs. Anna Louisa Henly-Lewis (nee Collard) made application, through her attorney, George H. Ross, to have her costs as the respondent plaintiff secured in the appeal which will come up before the supreme court on bank which sits in Calgary on the first Tuesday in June. The application was heard before his worship, Mr. Justice Stuart, and the application was refused.

It will be remembered that Miss Anna Louisa Collard sued Martin James Armstrong, a wealthy rancher of Nanton, for $25,000 damages, alleging breach of promise of marriage. The trial was heard before his worship, Mr. Justice Simmons, at the January session of the supreme court. The jury found for Miss Collard and awarded damages to the amount of $20,000.

Martin J. Armstrong, through his attorney, A. A. McGillivray, at once entered the appeal, which is to be heard June 3.

Since the trial of the breach of promise action Miss Collard was married to Mr. Henly-Lewis of Calgary, and at the present time making her home in Calgary.

Owing to the fact that it was the first breach of promise action ever tried in an Alberta court of law, much more interest was evidenced by the public than is usual in a civil action before the supreme court, and upon the morning that the late P. J. Nolan made his memorable appeal to the jury, which incidentally was his last, the court room was completely filled, even standing room being at a premium. Mr. Tweedie also made a very strong appeal on behalf of his client, denying the charges of the plaintiff in toto. The trial was marked from end to end by sharp hits between opposing counsel.

Miss Collard was upon the stand as a witness in her own behalf for more than nine hours and never once did she give ground during all the time that she was subjected to a grueling fire of cross-examination.

JOURNALISTIC HOT SHOT.

New Papers Talked in the Days of William Lyon Mackenzie.

How times have improved in Canada and other parts of the world in the last few years. Through the courtesy of Mr. J. Turnbull of Hamilton we have examined a couple of copies of "The Volunteer," a little paper published by William Lyon Mackenzie at Rochester, N.Y., during the period of his exile there, following the troubles of 1837, which throw interesting light on the subject. Mr. Mackenzie conducted what was certainly a lively and personal sheet, which in those two issues reflects not only his own troubles, his warfare with government in Canada and the unhappy lack of sympathy that existed between various classes in Canada and in Britain even so recently as 1838.

"Dr. Wilfred Nelson," we read as an item of significance, "has come to an understanding with the authorities and returned to Montreal." But for Mackenzie there was as yet no such good fortune. In the following extract we see a suggestion of the bitter struggle the little patriot had to endure from day to day:

"While the Grass Grows the Seed Sows."—I again most respectfully and earnestly entreat those who possess an intimate knowledge of any true character and conduct for many years past to bear themselves in support of this little Volunteer, to publish 1,200 copies of which weekly and maintain a large family, I find a very heavy task, because money is withheld which could most expeditiously be used.

There is now only one liberal paper in Upper Canada, The Toronto Examiner. Thomson has bought, bribed, or expelled the editorial corps, and the friends of his yoke hope to starve me out also.

Even in the death notices of The Volunteer there was the sting of bitterness, for example:

"Died—At Toronto, on the 8th ult., Anna, eldest son of James Shannon. At Traillville, the wife of Geo. Chalmers, one of the assassins who burnt the Caroline."

There is a real personal touch in this notice, constituting the only advertisement in the paper:

"Umbrella Lost.—A large black handle, with white peak on the end, and the words W. L. M. It may be returned to this office, Clinton street."

For those who think Britain has fallen upon unprecedented evil days there is much comfort in the following extracts:

In Great Britain there are 1,000,000 unshod shoes or boots, 200,000 unshod children, 1st and 2nd, 4,000 millions of national debt, 200,000 armed soldiers to frighten the poor, 200,000 tax-payers to fleece them, corn laws to make them pay double the value for the food they eat, and a nobility the counterparts of our United States or safety fund bank robbery.

What follows? From the remarks of Mr. Villiers in the British House of Commons on the Sugar duties, we have gleaned some frightful truths concerning the situation of the poor in England and Ireland. He says that in Preston at least 10,000 persons were without even a blanket to cover them. In Bolton, Blackburn, Oldham, and many other places, wretchedness and want were equally prevalent.

At Tiriharn, a farmer's cow which had died and had been buried was disturbed by some starving famines and served as food for twenty families!

In Limerick, people were seen actually eating from the swill tubs of their pigs! From poor, ill-fed Ireland the accounts are equally distressing. "Human Beings," says Mr. Villiers, "are there subsisting on a diet which in England would scarcely be given to the hogs!"

Richard Sheridan Sheridan.

Sheridan gave almost no promise in childhood of his future brilliancy. His mother pronounced him "a dull boy" to be "the dullest and most hopeless of her sons," and he was sent home from Dr. Warton's academy with the reputation of being an impenetrable dunce, who wrote "think" for "thing." But he must have been able to think a thing or two even in those days, for at twenty-six he had written the "School for Scandal," of which Leigh Hunt observed, "It is a very concentration and crystallization of all that is sparkling, clear and compact in the materials of pure comedy."

It should, however, be mentioned that a more judicious of the youthful Sheridan's preceptors, Samuel Parr, one of the masters at Harrow, detected the latent spark of his pupil's genius and aided it by judicious cultivation.

The Weathercock.

The effigy of the cock so often seen on church steeples is usually connected with a legend in connection with St. Peter. On a matter of fact, however, the figure of a cock used to be placed on the tops of sacred towers long before it was used on religious edifices. The movement of the bird in the breeze was supposed by the superstitious to warn of danger. In some churches the familiar vane is missing, but in days gone by a church was hardly ever built without the weathercock on its steeple.—London Standard.

Immutability of the Diamond.

The diamond, being pure carbon, with burn and be consumed without leaving a trace behind. The immutability of the diamond was not known till the middle of the nineteenth century. The ancients were firmly convinced that a diamond could not either be burned or broken. This was disproved in 1670 or thereabout, when a fair karat stone was consumed in the flame of a blow-pipe. I think it was in Rome. The Grand Duke of Florence in 1694 thought that fire would reveal the secret of the diamond's composition, and he caused a stone to be placed under the focus of concentrated sun rays. The diamond cracked, corroded and disappeared.—Science.
